In the beginning of every enterprise, penpactors generally " put their heat find foremost." We intended to act upon this maxim, and do our "level best" to make the first number of the "Tel" a spicy and delectable little sheet. We were proceeding very sucreinfally, as we thought, so to do, when we " were habited in our best foot by a run of job work yesterday. Transportation tickets, ball tickets, concert bills, "circular orders," and orders of all sorts powed in upon us "from early dawn to dewy eve," and every hody wanted his job done first, which we did. "Poor old Job!" said the old lady, as she looked over her ' specs," " added to his other afflictions, he had to print; he's been a'printin' ever since I was a leetle bit of a thing, and he's a'printin' yet."

We've tri-ed our best to-day. We will tri again on Thursday, and again on Saturday, and keep on tri-ing. In the meantime, good friends, you try some-try to help us. In the first place, subscribe for your home paper in preference to any other; then, there are various other ways in which you might help us that will readily suggest themselves to your mind. The editor cannot be expected to know everything, see everything, and hear everything. We will be pleased at all times to receive communications on interesting subjects; scraps of news from each neighborhood in the county, etc., etcetera, etcetera There are certainly some talented ladies here, as elsewhere. To such we extend a cordial invitation to contribute. "Quench not the spirit" that is within you-hide not the talents that God has given you, but let the spirit soar aloft with unclipt wing, and brighten the talents by passing them through the press occasionally. Let your motte be, as ours is, "Excelsior!" and let everybody else remember the advice of good old Solomon, the demand, which was promptly com-(2) "despise not the day of small things." Rich goods come in small packages ;-what a precious thing a little woman is, and a little baby, too, -(especially if it is yours). So, nurse this, our bantling, and treat it kindly. that it may grow and prosper. We promise you that it shall not, like Jerusha, "wax fat, and kick" any of its friends-unless they

Connected with our army here there are, no doubt, many men who write well, and who have leisure to write. To all such we extend an invitation to contribute to our columns. There are doubtless many abuses in the army which might be pointed out, and many suggestions that could be made that would prove of benefit to the soldier. The men of ability in the army are better calculated to do this than any others.
